Biography

Claire Fellman joined Reed Hilderbrand in 2019 after practicing for 9 years as a Director at Snøhetta in New York City, where she led the firm's reconstruction of Times Square. Other previous works include the Isabel Bader Center for the Performing Arts and the Guadalajara Museum of Environmental Science. At Reed Hilderbrand she is managing the Alamo Plaza design in San Antonio and contributing to the design of Tampa's Water Street District. She holds dual Masters degrees in Architecture and Landscape Architecture from the University of Pennsylvania and an undergraduate degree in Geology from Carleton College. She brings a passion for making natural systems legible in the urban landscape and enjoys teaching landscape architecture at the University of Pennsylvania and the Rhode Island School of Design.
